Members' Corner

We are looking for articles for our Newsletter about our members Patriots. Would you be willing to put together an article about your Patriot? It could be one or two pages long or even a paragraph. If you go up to four or five pages we could have a continuation into the next Quarter's Newsletter. These articles would then be available for all of our members to enjoy. If we can assist you in any way with putting something together just let us know. An article would be such a great way to pass down to our future generations what our Patriot did for our country. We're only an email away.

We now have fifteen Newsletters published and distributed to our members. I would like to ask you to again take a good look at these Newsletters and let me know what you would like to see in future editions. We did receive several votes of confidence on the outline and direction the newsletter is moving, however, we do need more input from fellow compatriots in our chapter news and general submissions. Are there areas of interest that you would like included? How well are we meeting your needs? If you have any stories and/or pictures you take at any of our events that you can share, please contact the Newsletter Editor Bob Knott at chiefknott@aol.com or the Publisher Bill Webb at webb.w@q.com. This is your Newsletter and we want it to be as informative and interesting as we can make it. That's where you can help.

MEET MY PATRIOTS "My American Revolution Ancestors" By Bob Chandler

Captain James Means —

Of the several patriot ancestors from whom I have the privilege of being descended, I am most intrigued with my fourth Great Grand Uncle James Means because he is the only patriotic ancestor of mine to have fought the entire duration. His military service took him from Ticonderoga to Valley Forge and numerous venues inbetween.

The Means family, a sept of the Menzies Clan, was one of numerous families which emigrated from Scotland in the 1600s to County Fermanagh, one of the six counties making up Northern Ireland. Later, in the early 1700s, some of these now "Scotch Irish" families immigrated initially to New England before scattering far and wide. Means family arrived in America in 1718 and settled at Falmouth (near Portland), Cumberland County, Maine. James was born in 1753 a few miles away at Old Orchard in York County. He was the third of 12 children born to John Means and Eleanor Johnston. An older brother by a year or so, Robert, is my direct lineage, but there is no record that Robert saw military or provided patriotic service. I assume this was because he stayed "neutral" to keep the farm in the family should the war not have turned out as it did, this being a common practice at the time. James married Eleanor, surname unknown, about 1771, and later Mary ("Polly") Cox with whom he had two boys and three girls, all born between and James, as a Private, marched with Captain Hart William's Company April 21st, 1775, in response to the alarm of April 19th. He served as a Corporal in Captain John Brackett's Company, Colonel Edmund Phinney's Regiment, and a Sergeant in Captain Hart's Company before being promoted to Ensign in 1776. Joining Colonel Ebenezer Sprout's Regiment January 1st, 1777, he was promoted to Lieutenant and then to Captain. He commanded a Company in Colonel Samuel Brewer's Regiment which deployed to Ticonderoga in February 1777. While camped near Valley Forge in January 1778, he was a 2nd Lieutenant in Captain Silas Burbank's Company of Colonel Samuel Brewer's Regiment. In December 1779, he was assigned as a Captain in the 12th Massachusetts Regiment commanded by Major Tobias Fernald. He ended the war as Captain of the 7th Company, 2nd Massachusetts Regiment, commanded by Lieutenant Colo-

Ebenezer Sprout. Despite the continual reorganization of several units to which James was assigned and the interchanging of commanding officers, he primarily served in two Continental Line Regiments: the 2nd and 12th Massachusetts. The former was engaged at Bunker Hill, Saratoga and Monmouth. The latter was engaged at Bunker Hill, Trenton, Princeton, Saratoga and Monmouth. After the war, James returned to Westbrook (near Portland), Maine, where he prospered well business-wise, built a very large house, entertained lavishly and enjoyed much popularity. One famous guest was former Major General Lafayette who visited for the second time in 1824 and who was entertained by one of James' daughters who sang for him. James received a Bounty Land Warrant for his military service and in 1819 applied for a Soldier's Pen-Having been a Continental Line officer, James became an Original Member of the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati and maintained that membership from 1783 to 1832. Because of no direct male lineage, or interested collateral male lineage, it became my distinct honor and privilege to

Cont'd from Page 3: represent him in that Society. Captain James Means died 15 October 1832, aged about 79 and interred in the Old Stroudwater Cemetery, Westbrook. His headstone has been vandalized, was cracked and tilting significantly with the inscription fast fading away. This is hardly befitting a true American Revolutionary War Patriot.

Guerilla/Irregular Warfare during the American Revolution Presented by Ray Harris

The battle of Lexington and Concord was a text book example of what civilian irregulars could do against a military organization. When General Lee advocated this type of warfare, General Washington vetoed it. General Wash-ington found the irregulars lacked discipline and order. He wanted to have a short street of the street disciplined army which would get recognition for the American Revolution, for example France's role. The continental army became the mainstay while the irregulars conducted raids and ambushes which made it impossible for the British Army to supply itself. With the war in the North at a standstill, the war moved South. The irregulars played an important role. One of the more famous guerilla fighters was Marion - the Swamp Fox. He would stage raids while carefully avoiding battle with a superior force. This type of warfare with the Continental Army was able to force the British to Yorktown which lead to Cornwallis surrendering at Yorktown. England had the means to continue the fight but public opinion was growing against the war. Because of this the Colonies won their independence.

Cont'd from Page 1, Pres. Corner Become familiar with their activities and, when invited, seek ways to promote a higher SAR profile, in support of their activities. Also, as our membership committee can attest, we are ever challenged by the need to bring both new and old public records to bear on the application process in pursuit of new members. I encourage you to become familiar with the process so you can act in a "helper" capacity. After referencing the NSSAR guidance on the subject, our State Registrar and State Secretary can coach you with the finer points. But more than just expanding programs and adding new members, I encourage you to read books, to do research, and watch educational programs that recall the American Revolutionary War period in history. For myself, I happen to know that the spark to Miss Liberty's flame cannot be quenched-as is demonstrated daily in troubled spots around the globe. It is the Spirit of 76 that informs us, unites us, and binds us together. In this context, I first ask for your prayers, next for your consent, and lastly for your continuing support, because I know that the generations that follow will need our counsel. John Reinert

THE BADGE OF MILITARY MERIT

The Badge of Military Merit, the oldest American military decoration, was established by George Washington in 1782. Washington's Badge of Military Merit was referred to as the "Purple Heart" and was awarded for military merit. It is thought that the name comes from a wood called "purple heart," which is a smooth-grained plum colored wood used with firearms and artillery. The wood was considered the best in the world for making gun carriages and mortar beds because it could withstand extreme stress. This badge issued for "any singularly meritorious action." It was the figure of a heart in purple cloth or silk, edged with narrow lace or binding. It was embroidered with a wreath surrounding the word "merit" and was designed by Pierre Charles L'Enfant in accordance Washington's personal instructions. This device, the Badge of Military Merit, was affixed to the uniform coat above the left breast and permitted its wearer to pass guards and sentinels without challenge and to have his name and regiment inscribed in a Book of Merit. The Badge specifically honored the lower ranks where decorations were unknown in contemporary European armies. As Washington intended, "The road to glory in a patriot army is thus open to all." In today's military the "Purple Heart" is a purple heart shaped Medal suspended from a purple ribbon with white boarders and given to all ranks for wounds sustained in combat operations.
